Articles Wanted for the New Look Caps & Flints

The next issue of Caps & Flints will be changing from the familiar A5 format to an A4 size journal and will be published in early 2020. The change in format will give the Editor a chance to better blend illustrations with the text. It will reduce the fragmentation of articles caused by the previous A5 format.

As members are no doubt aware, a journal cannot exist without content. We remind members that we need you, our members, to contribute articles on the interesting items you have in your collections. While we would prefer articles and accompanying images to be sent in digital form so that the Editor's job is simplified, we realise that some members may not be able to do that so. However, we will accept handwritten articles, which will be retyped. Please ensure images are clear and focussed.

Please forward articles or enquiries to the Editor Caps & Flints by email to cupfire1@ozemail.com.au, by mail to PO Box 2976, Cheltenham, 3192 or contact the Guild Secretary on (03) 9584 2907.

Monday Night Display Themes for 2020

January 27: American arms all periods and types. (Noel Hall Award Night)

February 24: Talk: Barry Thomas will present The Art of the Japanese Sword. A supper will be provided.

The Golden Years of the Japanese sword are considered to be those of the Kamakura period, 1192 to 1336. Most collectors would have a general knowledge of what a Japanese sword is without realizing the length of its history and the connections of style over that time. It is not until one delves deeper into the history of Japanese swords that the true depth and scope of the subject reveals itself. Japanese swords have a history of over 1,000 years and though the basic shape and form of the sword remains recognizable over that time, within the form there are a great number of changes in the style and technology of making.

This talk, then, does not discuss the actual process of making a Japanese sword. The greater complexity of its history is opened up by presenting the different epochs of sword making. The work of modern sword smiths is discussed, followed by the late Edo period (19th century) sword smiths and those of the early Edo period (17th century). Though styles of warfare and political history to some extent determined the functional shape of swords, all sword smiths strived to emulate the works of the 13th – 14th century Golden Age of sword making. The linkages between later sword smith styles ca 1600 to modern times and the earlier 13th century inspirational master works is explained. Correct Japanese terminology is used in the talk to illustrate the depth of minute description of the Japanese sword's features.

The talk runs for about 50 minutes and also presents the stylistic elements of the blade through its shape and features.

Guild members not familiar with Japanese swords might like to watch the following YouTube video for insight into how a sword is made <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=gxwWf-MfZVk>. The video runs for 49 minutes.

Request for Members' Email Addresses

The Guild is attempting to provide direct notification of the latest issues of Very Light and any other news that might be of interest to collectors. If you wish to make use of this facility, then please send us your email addresses.

It is quite simple to subscribe to this service just send your name and current membership number by email to info@armscollectorsguild.com. We will place your email address on our list, and you will get direct notification in your email.

This additional service will not replace the current system of posting the latest issues and news on the Guild's website nor the regular mail out of printed material to those without internet access. The Guild is also planning a major update of the website to bring it into line with current practice.

The Guild commenced this initiative to obtain members' email addresses some time ago, but response has been very limited which is disappointing. In fact, the number of people who still receive Very Light in hard copy exceeds those who receive it by email. In accordance with the Guild Committee's desire to extend the direct email of Very Light to our members, one of our committee members John Accardo 0417 577 773 will progressively contact by phone Guild members who haven't provided an email contact to ask if they would like to be included on the list.
